Since reading Barrie James's article in the August magazine, I've a few comments of my own regarding the road layouts and what they mean to me.

I agree with his comment that many residents now use the intersection at Church Road North/Ermine Street by the hotel. My experience of driving away from my house at Church Road North to South leaves me with a feeling of insecurity that I've rarely encountered since passing my driving test in 1977. My husband agrees with me that the South intersection in particular is unsafe. We recently had a very, very close encounter at the South with an oncoming vehicle from the North, and I was relieved not to be in my car where I am lower to the ground. Leaving at the time we had, I strongly feel in two seconds we avoided an R.T.A. Why oh, why, should I feel insecure driving through my village? I've received many comments from family, friends and acquaintances about these junctions, too.

I have noticed the speed at which drivers now make their way down the slope of Church Road North, passing the hotel on the right. Previously, with a sharper angle at the junction, the opportunity to glide down the road wasn't really there. Particularly popular with delivery drivers, but not always, playing catch up.

(I'm reminded of an incident I witnessed. A car driver had indicated to turn left into Church Road, though no longer necessary, and behind him was a large vehicle carrying a skip. The car driver then proceeded to turn right into the pub car park, just as the skip lorry was about to overtake him, possibly thinking the car was to be parked on the road. The lorry horn was sounded, the air was blue, the car driver was looking up at, oh, at least 10 tonnes of steel and rubber sitting beside him.)

With the popularity of electric vehicles on the increase, I wonder will we be able to determine if we are safer to cross at both junctions, especially at a blind bend? Noticeably, many people cross the road further away from the new, and previously, allocated pedestrian junction crossing points.

Finally, we have the existing and new street lighting. Five streetlights close to the junction at the hotel, it would seem excessive when there are fewer at the South junction. The lighting at Alconbury Weald is considerate to the level at which the light itself illuminates - not reaching much above the ground floor level of properties. Very good. Nearby properties here are partly lit up with orange or white light. Not good.

Chris Evans

I note with some interest Martyn Redmore's latest attack on the integrity of the Parish Council and local authorities in general in respect of the latest implementations to the traffic management system on the C 339 through our two villages. I would honestly venture that his criticisms are at best not very helpful, also I would suggest that no Parish Councillor, unlike Mr. Redmore professes to be, an expert in traffic management, my experience over forty years as clerk to the Council suggests that their proposals have always been guided by the best professional advice available, it should also be noted that any scheme, whoever proposes it, has to meet the strict criteria set out by the County Council and the, perhaps more crucially, the advice and comments of all local services, Police, Ambulance, Fire and passenger carrying services. Many years ago, when the A.14 link from Spittals to the A1 was opened it was hoped that this would take much of the Huntingdon bound traffic, sadly it failed, us motorists are creatures of habit with most traffic still using the renamed C 339 through the villages. Michael Monk, a valued Parish Councillor who for many years who worked tirelessly with local authorities and Urban and Civic towards measures to restrict traffic volumes and speeding, always remarked that it would be incredibly difficult to achieve a satisfactory result for both residents and motorists as the major seemingly insurmountable problems in implementing a satisfactory scheme of monitoring and control was the age old problem of a through route that divided both our village communities and the paramount need for the safety of all our residents, the initial scheme was funded almost in its entirety by I believe Urban and Civic. Mr. Pinner, chairman at the time, observed, schemes could be considered that would most definitely discourage both speed and volume, but it had to be remembered that if the severity of these worked, parishioners and local businesses would have to suffer the consequences every time they left the villages, which he observed was probably quite unacceptable. Many hours have been spent over the years trying to solve this issue, starting in the seventies with a new lighting system on the road to try and highlight build up area, reduce speed, nothing has worked totally satisfactorily but it is what it is, some say more measures some more signage, experience will reveal signage makes little difference, I myself travel the route regularly, if a driver observed the rules and drives at the correct speed I personally feel that the road is safe and fulfils almost all us older residents hoped for, it is certain that most users of this road are 'regulars' they know the road but there will always be a percentage who flout the rules, old adage says, roads are not usually dangerous, it's the motorists who use them!! On the cynical note of Mr Redmore's final paragraph, he did commence his rankings some years ago with dogs and their owners, then horses and their riders now road enhancements, perhaps errant cyclists and owners of wandering cats should be wary!! Perhaps with all his self-proclaimed expertise Mr Redmore should have stood for election to the council, surely debate on an elected forum would have served greater good rather than constant criticism from the outside, but perhaps like many the fear of rejection deterred that thought. I know, as I am certain does Mr. Redmore, comments such as these may cause a reaction. But mine I can assure everyone is a defence of a group of people who give freely of their time and will readily appreciate that they don't get everything right but always do their best for their community, to my mind they can do no more!

Cold Caller Warning

We're warning people to be vigilant after cold callers targeted an elderly and vulnerable woman who then paid more than £1000 for unnecessary work.

The woman was called by a 'home savings' company offering boiler services, citing better energy efficiency and a £500 saving.

She was then quoted a price of £1,200 for a boiler flush, and was visited at her home in Peterborough by men who hit her radiators with hammers and showed her bottles supposedly containing dirty remnants/water from the radiators.

The woman was then presented with a card machine and paid the money.

As the colder part of the year approaches, please remain wary of similar calls and remember if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

If you aren't expecting to hear from a salesperson or business, be cautious of your dealings with them. Do not feel pressured into handing over money or bank account details to pay for a product or service that you weren't planning to buy before they called or arrived at your door.

For more advice and information on fraud and cold callers, visit the force's dedicated web pages <https://www.cambs.police.uk/>

HUNTINGDON MALE VOICE CHOIR CONCERT.

St. Bartholomew's is delighted to be welcoming back Huntingdon Male Voice Choir to perform their first concert since lockdown (they were due to perform in our church in May 2020, so this has been a long time coming)!

We will be doing all we can to create space for both the choir and audience and the church will be well ventilated. Inevitably there will be less seats available, so we recommend buying your ticket in advance. If the concert has to be cancelled for any reason, a full refund will be offered.

Please see the Concert Advertisement page within this edition of the magazine, and if you have any questions or concerns please contact Di or Colet (contact details are on the advert).

We thank you for your support and look forward to welcoming you to the beautiful St. Bartholomew's Church.

Where is the Great Stukeley Sign?

Where is the Great Stukeley sign that should be on Ermine Street? It looks like it has been taken down to fit a caravan in a driveway.

More to the point there seems to be caravans popping up in drives all over the village.

What are the rules on caravans in your driveway? It looks a mess.

Recruits pass out as force prepares to launch new recruitment drive

Eighteen men and women passed out as police officers today as the force prepares to launch its newest route to becoming a police officer.

Nine of the new recruits were previously PCSOs and one an enquiry officer, and they will now return to their neighbourhoods. Others left careers in the Army, as a gardener and a personal trainer.

Sisters Gemma Newton, a former PCSO, and Linzi Claxton, the former enquiry officer, will return to Parkside Police Station, in Cambridge, as police officers.

For the first time since the pandemic, a limited number of family and friends were able to share the officers' big day in person.

It brings the total number of new recruits this year to 90 and comes the week before the constabulary opens a recruitment window for its Degree Holder Entry Programme (DHEP).

The DHEP is part of changes brought in by the PEQF (Police Education Qualification Framework) and allows the conversion of a degree into a graduate diploma in Professional Policing Practice.

The two years of the programme will count as the student officer's probationary period. It is open to all who hold a degree and is not just limited to recent graduates.

The launch of DHEP follows the successful first recruitment window under PEQF – the PCDA (Police Constable Degree Apprenticeship) - that took place in the spring. That was for those potential candidates who do not have a degree.

The recruitment window will open on Friday, 1 October.

Today, the new recruits were presented to Chief Constable Nick Dean at a ceremony at police HQ.

Nine will now be posted to Cambridge, three to Huntingdon, three to Peterborough, two to Wisbech and one to South Cambs.

Addressing the new officers, Mr Dean said: "I am really pleased to see former PCSOs and an enquiry officer successfully completing their initial training and look forward to seeing them return to their respective neighbourhoods, something I know they are keen to do.

"Despite huge changes in policing, its foundation hasn't changed for nearly 200 years since Robert Peel developed the Peelian Principles.

"He explained that the ability of the police to perform their duties is dependent upon public approval, policing by consent, and we are the envy of the rest of the world when it comes to this.

"You are the future of policing, in building trust and confidence within our communities and the guardians of those important Peelian principles.

"Nothing has changed, public trust and confidence in the police is still our bedrock....and you have to play an important role in building this."

Become a Girlguiding Volunteer

Meet new people, gain skills and help girls discover their full potential. Discover the benefits of volunteering with Girlguiding.

Due to changes in circumstances, 1st Alconbury Rainbows and 2nd Alconbury Brownies and Guides have now moved to Little Stukeley Village hall, where they will be meeting on Wednesday evenings during term time.

We could give more girls the opportunity to be join us if we had more adult volunteers. No matter how much time you have to give, there's an opportunity for you. You don't need to have been involved in guiding before or have loads of spare time to make a big difference. Whatever your skills and interests there's a role to suit you.

At the heart of guiding are the unit meetings that girls go along to each week. Volunteering at unit meetings means getting messy, meeting new people and running activities that help girls discover their potential.

If you aren't able to volunteer on a regular basis, you can still make an impact in a supporting role. No commitment is too small – every role is vital to running our charity.

If you are interested in volunteering with us, go to or contact Sarah Jane (07872 111633) for more information.

Many in our churches are vulnerable or caring for someone who is vulnerable. We want all people to feel able to come to church. For this reason, we are being cautious as COVID restrictions are lifted. We would like to encourage all people to wear a face covering during worship and certainly when singing; to register on the Track and Trace system; to sanitize on entering the church and to continue the practice of social distancing whilst in the building.

Every Sunday morning –9.30 am a 'live' service which will also be recorded. You can join this service by Zoom, or find it on the website (www.norleigh.org.uk) or North Leightonstone Benefice Facebook Group
